The technical fest "Resonance" was a platform for students to showcase their technical skills and knowledge. The event was held over two days, on 3rd and 4th February, and was packed with various technical activities and competitions.

One of the highlights of the event were the two mega events - Project Expo and Ideathon. The Project Expo was a competition where participants from various colleges displayed their projects and were evaluated by a panel of judges on various metrics. The Ideathon was an event where participants put forth their innovative ideas and received feedback and guidance from experts in the field.

The event also included workshop on blockchain conducted by Ajinkya Lohakare, the CTO and founder of DITTO Security. The workshop provided an opportunity for attendees to learn about blockchain technology, its applications, and its future prospects. Ajinkya Lohakare, with his extensive experience in the field of cybersecurity, was able to impart valuable knowledge and insights into the technology.

Another workshop was on Photoshop and After Effects, which was conducted by Koushik Ayireni, a shortfilm director and VFX artist at Shreyas Media. The workshop provided attendees with a hands-on experience in using the software for visual effects and image editing. Koushik Ayireni, with his expertise in the field, was able to provide valuable tips and tricks to attendees.

In addition to these, there were other technical events such as Code Hunt, which consisted of debugging and blind coding challenges, Shape It Up, where participants were asked to come up with a drawing of a robot with certain restrictions, and Sci Tech Trivia, which was a multi-level quiz competition based on science and technology.

In conclusion, the technical fest "Resonance" provided a platform for attendees to showcase their technical skills, learn from experts in the field, and participate in various competitions. The event was well-received by attendees and was deemed a success overall.
